PREFACE.

WHO'S WHO IN PENNSYLVANIA is presented in a Second Edition, after an interval of four years since the publication of the First, with a view to make it a more complete and up-to-date presentation of personal statistics of those citizens of the Commonwealth whose lives and careers are of the greatest interest, and who are taking the most active and influential part in the progress and development of the State.

The former edition met with wide and generous recognition, and the present one, endeavoring to present not only such new names of importance as have achieved distinction in the interim, but also to give more perfect accounts of those whose life-sketches have been retained from the First Edition, is believed to be a marked improvement over its predecessor, the original volume.

The utility of what are known as Who's Who books, of which the London Who's Who, now in its sixtieth year of successful annual publication, may be regarded as the progenitor, is now everywhere recognized, the Germans and French having entered the field for their respective countries. The application of the idea to the representation of the notables of a single State began with the publication of "Who's Who in New York City and State," by L. R. Hamersly & Co. (of which the Fourth Edition is now in preparation), followed by the issue from the same publishing house of "Who's Who in Pennsylvania." The present edition is virtually a new book, such matter as has been retained from the former issue having been in almost every case rewritten, amplified or condensed as seemed to be most appropriate to the purpose of the publication, which is to furnish a complete, accurate and reliable biographical dictionary of contemporary Pennsylvanians.

The greatest care has been taken to make authentic the records contained in this volume. The data, in almost every instance, have been secured from first hands, and the sketches, when completed, have been submitted in each case to the subject for verification or amendment. A very large proportion of the facts presented in this publication have never appeared before, and of the remaining information little is readily accessible from any other source.

“Who’s Who in Pennsylvania” is a reference book of current biography of those citizens of the State who are now at the front of its activities, and whose achievements are matters of current interest. The statesmen and jurists, capitalists, railway officials, leaders in commerce and manufactures, lawyers, physicians, the higher clergy, the leaders in the colleges and universities of the State, journalists, scientists, artists, authors, engineers and others who represent the public, industrial, intellectual and social interests of Pennsylvania are represented, in due proportion, in this volume. As a reference book the publication will be found of constant use to those interested in the Commonwealth and its citizens, whether resident in the State or elsewhere, and will form a valued addition to the list of most frequently consulted authorities in libraries, public or private.

With a view to further improvement and expansion in future editions, the readers of this volume will confer a favor upon L. R. Hamersly & Co. by the suggestion of the names of people who should be included in the book, but who have for any reason been omitted or inadvertently overlooked.

BOYER, Solomon B.:

Lawyer; born in Northumberland County, Jan. 4, 1829. He was brought up on a farm, in connection with which he opened a country store when a boy, journeying to Philadelphia to purchase goods when sixteen years of age. His education was very meager, his boyhood being spent in farm work, storekeeping, and cabinetmaking, until 1850, when he was elected justice of the peace, holding this office for five years. This led him to the study of law, and in 1858 he was admitted to the Northumberland County bar. He became a member of the Town Council of Sunbury in 1862, and was elected mayor of that town in 1863. Meanwhile he had gained a large and profitable law practice, which has since continued to grow, he being especially successful in criminal cases. He is also an adept in civil law, and has long practised in the State Supreme Court, and the United States District and Circuit Courts. He is the author of Boyer's Criminal Digest, a work highly esteemed by the legal profession. Address: Sunbury, Pa.

BOYLE, Patrick O.:

Editor; born in the Rosses, Donegal, Ireland, in 1846. He was brought by his parents to America in 1847, the family settling in Butler County, Pa. Here his father died of ship fever, and the mother removed to Brady's Bend, where the boys, as they grew up, obtained employment in the iron works at that place, going to Pitthole, then a busy petroleum center, in 1865. Mr. Boyle engaged in manual labor, and continued to do work of various kinds throughout the oil region till 1874, when an attack of sunstroke incapacitated him for outdoor work in the summer season. He now turned his attention to news reporting, connecting himself with a number of journals. After the failure of the Richburg Echo in 1881 Mr. Boyle began the work of "oil scouting," private oil reporting, gathering news which proved of much value to oil speculators and brokers. In 1885 he purchased the Oil City Derrick, with which paper his name has since been identified. It is an authority in all matters relating to petroleum, and has a reputation throughout the State, Mr. Boyle's editorial utterances being an important element in its standing and success. Address: Oil City, Pa.

BROWN, William H.:

Civil engineer; began his career as a civil engineer in Philadelphia, under Strickland Kneas, then chief engineer of the Survey Department of Philadelphia, and remained with him until he became associated with Thomas A. Scott, who had become assistant secretary of war, to whom he was sent because of a request made by Mr. Scott of Mr. Kneas for a surveyor to make surveys of the country on the south side of the Potomac, so that he could build a railroad to carry supplies to the Union Army. Besides this work Mr. Brown, while working for the Army, built a bridge over the Hedgesman River, in order to relieve Sigel's corps, and a long trestle over the Rappahannock River, constructed in four days, to enable Gen. Pope's army to be supplied promptly with munitions of war and rations. Mr. Brown was taken ill with typhoid fever in 1862, and was sent home. After he recovered he was again with the army for a month, when Mr. Scott sent him to the Pan Handle Railroad as assistant engineer, the line being then finished between Pittsburgh and Steubenville. He became assistant engineer, 1862-1863, and principal assistant engineer, 1863-1864, of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad; came to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in 1864, on special service on the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Divisions; was made roadmaster of the Pan Handle Railroad at Coshocton, Jan. 1, 1865, and a month later promoted to engineer of the Oil Creek Railroad under Frank Thomson, then general superintendent; principal assistant engineer, Philadelphia and Erie Division, June, 1865; engineer, same division, Sept. 1, 1867; transferred to Altoona, to build the new yards and car shops, March 1, 1869; promoted to resident engineer of the Middle Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with headquarters at Altoona, January, 1870; superintendent and chief engineer of the Sunbury & Lewiston Railroad, March, 1871; superintendent and engineer of the Bedford Division, August, 1872; promoted engineer of maintenance of way with headquarters at Philadelphia, Aug. 1, 1874, and chief engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad from June 1, 1881, until he retired, Feb. 28, 1906, having reached the age of seventy years, at which the officers and employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company retire. During his long service he contributed greatly to the physical development of the Pennsylvania system. Among some of the most important works that were carried out under his direction were twenty-four engine houses and shops, fourteen elevated railroads to avoid grade crossings in cities, the Broad Street Passenger station and offices, an elevated freight road through West Philadelphia, 133 changes of line between New York and Pittsburgh, whereby over 3979 degrees of curvature were eliminated, equal to eleven whole circles, and a saving of distance of over six miles. The most valuable piece of work, however, was the surveying and construction of a low grade freight line from Marysville, six miles west of Harrisburg, to Morrisville on the Delaware River, opposite Trenton, whereby the Pennsylvania Railroad secures a low grade line for its freights from the summit of the Alleghenies to tide water at Jersey City, with an adverse grade against the traffic of only sixteen feet to the mile. This line was opened for service in 1905. Address: Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

DeARMIT, William P.:

Coal operator; born in Hollidaysburg, Pa., in 1850; his father was of French descent and his mother was of Scotch-Irish parentage, being a daughter of the noted Col. John Piper, the Piper family being prominent in the Revolutionary War. After obtaining a good education, he entered the employ of the New York and Cleveland Gas and Coal Company in 1872 as a bookkeeper; he was made treasurer in 1874, and president of the company in 1887. At that time natural gas had made great inroads into the business, but by adopting progressive methods and pushing the trade into new fields he was able to increase the business of the company in 1892 to over 50 per cent. more than had ever been sold, even before the advent of natural gas. In July, 1901, he left the New York and Cleveland Gas Company, and was later made president of the Empire Coal Mining Company. A notable feature of his campaign for better conditions in the coal mining business has been his sturdy opposition to the so-called company or "pluck-me" stores. Address: 1226 Murray Hill Avenue, Pittsburgh.

DOLAN, Thomas:

Manufacturer; born in Montgomery County, Pa., Oct. 27, 1834. He was educated in the common schools, and in 1851 he began his business life as a clerk in a Philadelphia commission house engaged in selling knit goods and hosiery. Ten years in that house gave to him a thorough knowledge of the business, and in 1861 he began in a small way the manufacture of knit goods, and during the years of the Civil War found a large demand for the product of his factory. In a few years he became convinced that there was an opening for the manufacture at home of fine worsted goods which had up to that time only been made abroad, and he established in 1866, the Keystone Knitting Mills, and began their production, especially what are known as Berlin shawls, in which he had a very large trade until 1871, since which time he has been chiefly and since 1882 exclusively engaged in the manufacture of worsted goods for men's wear. Mr. Dolan's career as a manufacturer has been marked by progressive methods. He has introduced the latest machinery and has been a pioneer in the development of American supremacy in textile manufactures and in replacing imported goods with American products. Not only is he the head of Thomas Dolan & Company, the largest manufacturers of materials for men's wear in this country, but he is also president of the Quaker City Dye Works, and has been president of the Philadelphia Association of Textile Manufacturers, president of Textile Dyers' Association; vice-president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, etc. He is also president of the United Gas Improvement Company, and director of the Philadelphia Traction Company, the Brush Electric Company, the School of Design for Women, University Hospital, the Pennsylvania Museum of Art, and many other institutions and corporations. He is a trustee of the McKinley National Monument Association, and a member of the National Committee to Promote the University of the United States. DOWNING, Jerome F.:

Fire insurance underwriter; born at Enfield, Mass., March 24, 1827. He was reared on a farm, and was educated in the schools of Massachusetts. On reaching manhood he entered journalism in his native State, and subsequently was editor-in-chief of the Troy (N. Y.) Daily Post. Having decided to abandon journalism for the law, he became principal of the high school in Carlisle, Pa., studying law while occupying that position, and was admitted to the bar of that place in 1855, removing the same year to Erie. Here he acquired a lucrative practice and was district attorney of the county. In 1864 he was offered the Western management of the Insurance Company of North America, which, being disinclined to give up his profession, he accepted with hesitation, and with the stipulation that the headquarters of the department should be at Erie. The management of the Pennsylvania Fire was added in 1872. The connection of these two companies in the West under the direction of Mr. Downing continued until Jan. 1, 1895, when the Pennsylvania Fire withdrew and established an independent western department, and the Philadelphia Underwriters, composed of the Insurance Company of North America and the Fire Association of Philadelphia, the strongest combine of the kind in the world, took the place of the Pennsylvania Fire, and he became manager of its Western Department. Mr. Downing is classed with the greater of the Western underwriters. He has large business interests in western Pennsylvania, and is prominent in public affairs. Address: Erie, Pa.

DRESSER, Solomon Robert:

Manufacturer, inventor and ex-congressman; born in Litchfield, Hillsdale County, Mich., Feb. 1, 1842; son of Parker Dresser and Lydia (Cronklute) Dresser. He received a common school education and attended Hillsdale College. Mr. Dresser married, first in 1863, Vesta E. Stimson, of Hillsdale, Mich., who died in 1883, and second, Dec. 21, 1885, Caroline Kirsch, of Lowell, Ohio. He conducted the Dresser farm with his father until 1865, when the oil development of West Virginia began to attract attention and companies were formed for oil operation. In one of these he took stock and soon became its manager, and continued in this capacity until 1872, when he came to Pennsylvania to engage in the production of oil and gas. Here he gained the practical experience which, combined with his inventive genius, placed his name foremost among the men of brains whose business energy invented and developed the machinery and appliances used in the oil and gas industry. Among his inventions are a packer for oil and gas wells, which has taken the lead from the first day it was placed on the market, a rubber pipe coupling which by providing for contraction and expansion makes a perfectly tight joint, and an insulated pipe coupling which prevents the destruction of water and gas pipes by electrolysis. He is a large employer of labor and has never had a strike or any trouble with his employees. Mr. Dresser was elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress in 1902 and reelected in 1904 to the Fifty-ninth Congress from the Twenty-first Pennsylvania District. Residence: 149 Jackson Avenue, Bradford. FOULKROD, William W.:

Merchant, congressman; born in Philadelphia, Nov. 22, 1846; educated in the public and private schools. He entered the wholesale house of Mustin & Bennett in 1863 to learn the hosiery, glove and notion business; grew up with this firm, until it was reorganized in January, 1879, when it took the title of Thomas J. Mustin & Co., Mr. Foulkrod becoming an active member of that firm. In April, 1887, this firm sold out its entire business to John Wanamaker, who at that time had gone into the wholesale business. Later, when in 1890, the firm of Hood, Foulkrod & Co. was formed, Mr. Foulkrod became an active member of that firm, which was the largest wholesale dry goods firm of Philadelphia, and one of the largest in this country, Mr. John Wanamaker being connected with it as special partner, it being the successor of the old firm of Hood, Bonbright & Co., which was the name under which Mr. John Wanamaker conducted his wholesale business after he had bought out Hood, Bonbright & Co. Mr. Foulkrod comes from an old Philadelphia family who have resided in the section of Philadelphia known as Frankford for seven generations. The family has always been prominent in public affairs. Mr. Foulkrod's father died while a member of the Pennsylvania State Senate from Philadelphia. His grandfather was a member of both the House and Senate of Pennsylvania, also a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1837-1838, also an officer in the War of 1812. His great-grandfather was in the Revolution and participated in the battles of Trenton, Princeton and Germantown and others. Mr. William W. Foulkrod has followed his family in taking an active interest in public affairs. He was one of the organizers and the first president (for three years) of the Philadelphia Trades League, the largest commercial organization of Philadelphia, and is yet a member of its Board of Directors, and chairman of its Harbor and Navigation Committee. He was the first president of the Philadelphia & Frankford Railroad Company; is one of the Trustees of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum, and was the acting president of the National Export Exhibition. He is president of the Frankford Fire Insurance Company, president of the Frankford Hosiery Mills Company, and secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Evans Museum and Dental College for which Dr. Thomas Evans left his fortune to the city of Philadelphia. He is a member of the Citizens' Permanent Relief Committee, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, president of the Frankford Country Club, president Frankford Historical Society, member of the Art Club of Philadelphia, and connected with many other business and social associations. In November, 1906, Mr. Foulkrod was elected a member of Congress from the Fifth Pennsylvania District, which represents the large manufacturing interests of Philadelphia and is the largest manufacturing district of the country. Address: 4716 Leiper Street, Frankford, Philadelphia.

FOUSE, Levi Garner:

President of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia; born at Clover Creek, Blair County, Pa., Oct. 21, 1850; son of Adam Fouse and Susannah (Garner) Fouse. He was graduated from Juniata Collegiate Institute, 1866; Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio, 1867, and Mercersburg (P.) College. He married at Mercersburg, Pa., Jan. 10, 1870, Mary B. Hause. After special studies in actuarial science, Mr. Fouse in 1870 entered the life insurance business in the capacity of solicitor. He organized the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company in 1878 and has been its president continuously. Mr. Fouse is author of numerous publications on life insurance, and has served in a number of companies as consulting actuary. He was the first in this country to formulate a plan adapted to the conditions as they exist in the United States, based on the actual experience of British offices, for insuring under-average or impaired lives. He is a member of a number of scientific organizations, through which he has contributed articles of special interest with reference to the economic and ethical features of life insurance. Address: 3613 Baring Street, Philadelphia.

FOW, John H.:

Lawyer and legislator; born in Philadelphia, June 23, 1851, the family having settled in Philadelphia in 1728. He was educated in the public schools and studied law in the office of Hon. F. Carroll Brewster, being admitted to the bar in 1878. Taking an active part in political affairs, he soon became a prominent figure in municipal and State politics, being a member of the Democratic State Committee in 1882 and 1883, and for three years vice-president of the Democratic State League, of which organization he was the first president; he served for two terms in the Philadelphia City Council, 1885 and 1887, and in 1888 he was elected to the House of Representatives; he was reelected in 1890, 1892 and 1894, again elected in 1898, serving the term 1899-1900, and afterward elected to the extraordinary session of 1906. He served on committees of Judiciary, Railroads, and Appropriations, and was chairman of the celebrated Quay Senatorial Investigating Committee in 1899, and was also chairman of the Democratic caucus in 1893 and 1895. He was a member of one of the committees having in charge the bi-centennial celebration of the settlement of Pennsylvania in 1882, and the centennial celebration of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States held in Philadelphia in 1887; also of that concerned in the unveiling of the Washington monument in Fairmount Park in 1897. Mr. Fow won a reputation in journalism as special correspondent of the Philadelphia Evening Star at Harrisburg for a number of years, also during the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893. He was the first president of the Willow Grove Trolley Railway; he was a commissioner of the Cotton States Exposition at Atlanta in 1895, representing Pennsylvania; he is considered one of the best political speakers that have ever advocated party men and measures on the hustings. Mr. Fow as a lawyer has had more acts of the Legislature declared unconstitutional than any other member of his profession in Pennsylvania; he is a writer of some force and has contributed some very valuable articles to various publications. His article on Washington crossing the Delaware led to the adoption of the bronze tablet representing Pennsylvania on the Battle Monument at Trenton. It was taken from old records that Mr. Fow consulted along with the late Adjutant-General Stryker of New Jersey, and the late Governor of Pennsylvania, Robert E. Pattison, and is historically correct. It represents General Washington sitting in the stern of a small boat that is being rowed by a man named Cadwallader, while General Knox sits in the bow of the boat. Mr. Fow has also written a full and complete history of the origin and manufacture of the American flag, wherein he conclusively shows that the Betsy Ross claim has no foundation in fact, either documentary or of record, and is simply a legend. Mr. Fow is a member of the State Bar Association, the Lawyers' Club, and is past master of his Masonic lodge, and belongs to a large number of social and political clubs. Residence: 1229 North Sixth Street. Office address: 1415 Filbert Street, Philadelphia.

FRICK, Henry Clay:

Capitalist; born at West Overton, Westmoreland County, Pa., Dec. 19, 1849. His father, John W. Frick, had been a farmer in Ohio and Pennsylvania, but at the time of his birth, was working as an engineer in the mill owned by Abraham Overholt at Broad Ford, Pa. John W. Frick's wife was the daughter of Abraham Overholt, and H. C. Frick was born in Mr. Overholt's house. He was second of five children, three boys and two girls. Elder Frick was a failure in business; H. C. Frick was practically adopted into the Overholt family when he was twelve years old. He had a few years of common schooling at West Overton, a short term at Chester Military Academy, and a few months at Otterbein University in Ohio. He married in Pittsburgh, Dec. 15, 1881, Adelaide Howard Childs, and they have a son, Childs Frick, and a daughter, Helen C. Frick. At the age of sixteen he began business life as clerk in store of White, Orr & Company, merchants, later bookkeeper in grandfather's distillery, and from there with Morgan & Company, coke dealers, and at about twenty-one became their agent at Poughkeepsie; a few years after, joined a company to build the Mount Pleasant and Broad Ford Railroad, a short line to penetrate to Connellsville coke region, which road was opened in 1871. In the same year, he organized the corporation of Frick & Company, coke dealers, with help of Abraham O. Tintzman, one of his grandfather's partners. This company bought about three hundred acres of soft coal lands and fifty-one coke ovens in the Connellsville region, and a year later added one hundred and fifty ovens to the equipment. In 1873, when panic was on, borrowed money and bought out his partners, greatly developed business and made a fortune before he was thirty. In 1882 he reorganized business as H. C. Frick Coal & Coke Company, with capital of $2,000,000 and company then owned 3,000 acres of coal lands and one thousand and twenty-six ovens. In 1882, sold an interest in the coke business to Carnegie Brothers, becoming a partner in the latter company. In 1889, he became chairman of Carnegie Brothers & Company, limited, the reorganization of Carnegie Brothers, bought the Duquesne Steel Works, and in 1892, consolidated the Carnegie Steel interests into the Carnegie Steel Company, Limited. Had charge of the resistance of the company to the demands of the strikers in the Homestead strike and persisted until he had won it. Was assaulted, shot and stabbed, July 23, 1892, by a Russian anarchist named Berkman, from New York, but after thirteen days came to the office and resumed charge of the strike and continued to a successful conclusion. He continued the management of Carnegie Steel Company, built the Union Railroad connecting all the plants with one another and with the railroad lines entering Pittsburgh; secured valuable ore properties in the Nebraska fields of Lake Superior. Disputes arose between Mr. Frick and Mr. Carnegie which were finally settled by the organization in 1900 of The Carnegie Company, in which Mr. Frick had a share of $31,000,000, about equally divided between stocks and bonds, and in the subsequent sale to the United States Steel Corporation, he received about $45,000,000 in stocks and nearly $16,000,000 in bonds of the latter corporation; has bought largely and is now one of principal owners of the corporation. He built the Frick Building, the largest and finest office building in Pittsburgh, in 1904, and later added to it the Frick Building Annex; is said to be the largest stockholder in Pennsylvania Railroad; has large interests in Cambria Steel Company, Norfolk and Western Railroad, and Baltimore and Ohio; extensive interests also in Philadelphia and Reading Railroad; director and member of the executive committee Union Pacific Railroad; largest owner of Poughkeepsie real estate, and an officer and director in many of the largest interests in Poughkeepsie. He was a member of the board of directors of the Equitable; was chairman of committee to investigate the charges of wrongdoing against Alexander and Hyde. The committee reported that the charges were true and recommended that both men resign. This report was killed in the directors' meeting, and the members of the committee resigned. Mr. Frick is a member of the Union League Club of Pittsburgh and of the Metropolitan, Lawyers' and Engineers', Seawauhaka Corinthian Yacht, New York Yacht, Union League, Racquet and Tennis, Riding, National Arts, City Midway and Country Clubs of New York and the Automobile Club of America, of New York City. GREEN, John Pugh:

First vice-president, Pennsylvania Railroad; born in Philadelphia, July 31, 1839. He was educated in the Philadelphia public schools, graduating with credit from the Central High School. While at this school he applied himself especially to the study of shorthand writing, at a time when the recent system of stenography was in its infancy. He foresaw the importance of the art, made earnest efforts to perfect himself in it, and became an expert stenographer, an accomplishment to which he largely owed his early success in life. His school life was followed by a period devoted to the general study of law, and in due time he procured admission to the Philadelphia bar, where he was beginning to make his mark in 1861, when the Civil War broke out, and he enlisted in the Union service, and remained in the Army till the end of the war, when he had won the rank of captain, and was assistant adjutant-general on the staff of General Thomas L. Kane, commander of the famous Pennsylvania Bucktail Brigade. Captain Green married, in Philadelphia, Jean Crissy Moore. On his return from his army service early in 1865, he entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, as private secretary to Colonel Thomas A. Scott, then first vice-president of the company. In this position his knowledge of stenography was of great assistance. On Jan. 1, 1866, he became secretary and treasurer of the Milwaukee & Minnesota Railway Company, a service in which he remained till Feb. 1, 1868. On July 1, 1869, he resumed his position as secretary to Colonel Scott, holding it till 1874, when he was promoted assistant to the president; promoted fourth vice-president, Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Oct. 1, 1882; he was elected third vice-president, June 1, 1886, and on March 1, 1893, second vice-president of the company, a position which gave him general charge of the accounting department and special supervision over the lines west of Pittsburgh. On Feb. 10, 1897, he was made first vice-president. Captain Green has been president of the Belmont Cricket Club. Address: Rosemont, Pa. Office address: 211 Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

GREGG, David McMurtrie:

Brevet major-general, U. S. Volunteers; born at Huntington, Pa., April 10, 1833; son of Matthew D. Gregg, lawyer and Ellen (McMurtrie) Gregg. His maternal grandfather, David McMurtrie, settled at Huntington before the Revolution, and on his father's side he is a grandson of Andrew Gregg, who served as a representative in Congress, 1791-1807, U. S. senator, 1807-1813, and secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, 1820-1823. Andrew Gregg's father, also named Andrew, came from Londonderry, Ireland, to Pennsylvania in 1712, and died at Carlisle, Pa., in 1789. Among his other ancestors is a great-grandfather, Gen. James Potter, who became vice-president of Pennsylvania in 1781, and more remotely David Gregg, of Argyllshire, Scotland, who was a captain in Cromwell's Army. Gen. Gregg received his preliminary education at Milnwood, Pa., and the University of Lewisburg, entered the United States Military Academy, July 1, 1851, and was graduated with the class of 1855. He married, Oct. 6, 1862, Ellen F. Sheaff, of Montgomery County, Pa. He was commissioned second lieutenant of Dragoons, July 1, 1855; first lieutenant First Dragoons, March 21, 1861. He served from 1855 on the frontier, in New Mexico, California, Oregon and Washington Territory; was on the Spokane Expedition in 1858, and was engaged in the desperate combat at Tohotsnimme, and in the combat at Four Lakes in September, 1858, and other Indian fights. As captain of the Sixth Cavalry he served in the defenses of Washington from the fall of 1861 until promoted in January, 1862, to be colonel of the Eighth Pennsylvania Cavalry, after which he participated in the battles of Seven Pines and Fair Oaks in May, 1862, and Glendale and Malvern Hill in June and July. In November of that year he was made a brigadier-general and placed in command of the Second Cavalry Division of the Army of the Potomac. In 1863 he took part in Stoneman's Raid, and was at Brandy Station, Aldie, Upperville, Gettysburg (where, on the right flank on July 3, he repulsed Stuart's attempt with four brigades of Confederate Cavalry to reach the rear of Meade's Army, simultaneously with Pickett's assault in front), Shepherdstown, Culpeper Court House and Rapidan Station, Sulphur Springs, Auburn and Bristoe Station, and at New Hope Church and Parker's Store in the Mine Run campaign; and in 1864 at Todd's Tavern, in Sheridan's Raid, at Ground-Squirrel Church, Meadow Bridge, Hawes' Shop, Gaines' House, Trevilian Station, Tunstall Station, St. Mary's Church, Warwick Swamp, Darbytown, Lee's Mills, Charles City Road, Deep Bottom, Ream's Station, Peebles' Farm, Vaughn Road, Boylston Plank Road, and Bellefield, besides many minor actions and skirmishes. From March 26, to April 6, 1864, he commanded the Cavalry Corps of the Army of the Potomac, and the Second Cavalry Division again from April 6, 1864, to Feb. 3, 1865, in the Richmond campaign, being in command of all the cavalry of the Army of the Potomac from Aug. 1, 1864, to Feb. 3, 1865. In many of the long list of cavalry combats in which he was engaged General Gregg was in chief command. On Aug. 1, 1864, he had been made brevet major-general United States Volunteers "for highly meritorious and distinguished conduct throughout the campaign, particularly in the reconnaissance on the Charles City Road." On Feb. 3, 1865, he resigned. He was appointed, by President Grant, United States consul at Prague in 1874, but resigned the same year, and afterward lived at Reading, Pa.; and in 1891 was elected auditor-general of Pennsylvania. After the death of General Hancock in 1886, General Gregg was for many years commander of the Pennsylvania Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States. Address: 1516 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

GUFFEY, James McClurg:

Petroleum operator; born in Sewickley, Westmoreland County, Pa., Jan. 19, 1839. His paternal ancestor, of Scotch descent, came to Philadelphia in 1738 and settled in Westmoreland County as early as 1758, going west in the track of the expedition against the French at Fort Duquesne. The family purchased part of the territory of the present township of Sewickley in 1780, and there the descendants of the Guffeys still dwell. As a boy Mr. Guffey lived and worked on his father's farm, gaining a good education, of a commercial character, in the local schools, and when eighteen he became clerk in the service of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company at Louisville, Ky. Several years later he resigned to accept a position with the Adams Southern Express Company at Nashville, Tenn. Shortly afterward he was drawn back to Pennsylvania by the great oil developments in that State, and became an agent for the Gibbs & Sterrett Company, manufacturers of oil-well machinery and appliances at St. Petersburg, Pa. He soon entered actively into the oil business, investing in oil wells, pipe lines, and various local enterprises, his operations growing with remarkable rapidity until they covered the most productive petroleum fields of Butler, Forest, Warren, McKean and Allegheny Counties. The famous Mathews well was drilled and most of the phenomenal McDonald field owned by him and a few others. His operations expanded until he became the largest oil producer and operator in the States, and also the owner of highly valuable coal mines in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and of gold and silver works in Colorado and Idaho; and more recently he has been extensively identified with oil developments in the Beaumont, Batson's Prairie and other oil fields in Texas. He is president of the Trade Dollar Mining and Milling Company of Silver City, Idaho, and the town of Guffey, thirty miles from Cripple Creek, has been named in his honor. Politically he is a Democrat, and in 1897 was chosen by the State Convention of his party as the Pennsylvania member of the Democratic National Committee, in which position he continues. Mr. Guffey is a prominent member of the Duquesne Club of Pittsburgh, a trustee of Washington and Jefferson College, a member of the Manhattan Club of New York, and of other organizations. HARRISON, Charles Custis:

Provost of the University of Pennsylvania; born in Philadelphia, May 3, 1844; son of George Leib Harrison and Sarah Ann (Waples) Harrison, and a descendant of Thomas Harrison, of Carlisle, England, who visited America before the Revolution and there espoused the cause of the Colonies at the cost of the sacrifice of his English estate. A son of Thomas established the first chemical manufactory in America and this was carried on by his descendants, uncles of Charles Custis Harrison, under the firm name of Harrison Brothers. On his mother's side he is descended from the famous Custis family, of Virginia, whose name he bears. He was educated in the Episcopal Academy, and was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, as A. B. and Greek salutatorian, and was awarded the Henry Reed Prize at graduation in 1862 and elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He married on Feb. 23, 1870, Ellen Nixon Waln, and their family consists of three sons and three daughters. Mr. Harrison had intended to make the law his profession, but during his absence on a visit to the army in 1862, with the purpose of joining its ranks, the late John Welsh proposed to his father to establish their two sons, with Walter S. Newhall, in the sugar-refining business, under the firm name of Harrison, Newhall & Welsh. Young Harrison, then only nineteen, on his return home, found his warlike aspirations checked, and entered actively into the business formed for him, which quickly showed signs of prosperity. His brothers and brother-in-law subsequently entered the firm, which became known as Harrison, Frazier & Company, and later as the Franklin Sugar Refining Company. In 1892, when the refinery was sold, it was doing the largest business in value of products of any manufactory in Pennsylvania. Mr. Harrison attended to its mercantile interests, and in doing so traveled widely through the United States and Mexico. Aside from his business relations he was an active member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, and took great interest in the Episcopal Hospital, and in the Society for the Protection of Children from Cruelty, of which he is the president. He was elected a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania in 1876, and on the death of John Welsh succeeded him as chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means. In 1894 on the resignation of the highly efficient Provost Pepper, Mr. Harrison was requested to accept this office. He declined, but was finally induced to accept it for a brief interval and after a year's experience consented in June, 1895, to be installed as provost. A few days previously he had established, in honor of his father, The George L. Harrison Foundation for the Encouragement of Liberal Studies and the Advancement of Knowledge, endowing it with $500,000. Its purpose was to establish scholarships and fellowships for men of exceptional ability, increase the library, and aid professors to devote themselves to special work. The new provost sought diligently to add to the resources and develop the capabilities of the university, a striking result of his labors being the building of the dormitories, at a cost of $700,000, and of Houston Hall, as a college club house of $160,000; this money being obtained in the form of gifts from liberal patrons of the institution. This is but a portion of the funds raised during the administration of Provost Harrison, these having amounted to over $8,000,000, which have been applied greatly to the advantage and development of the university. Mr. Harrison is a member of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, the American Philosophical Society, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Phi Beta Kappa Society and the University Club. Address: 400 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

HARRISON, Thomas Skelton:

Manufacturer; born in Philadelphia, Sept. 19, 1837; grandson of John Harrison, who founded the house of Harrison Brothers & Company; great-grandson of Dr. Michael Leib, United States senator from Pennsylvania. He was educated in the schools of Philadelphia. Mr. Harrison began his business life in the employment of Harrison & Newhall, sugar refiners, and during the Civil War served as paymaster in the United States Navy, 1861-1864, taking part in all the operations along the Atlantic and Florida coasts. He is said to have been the only man in the service besides the Count of Paris, who did not draw his pay, presenting this, amounting to $5,400, to the War Library and Museum of the Loyal Legion of Pennsylvania. After leaving the Navy he became a member of the firm of Harrison Brothers & Company, manufacturers of white lead, paints and chemicals, from which he retired June, 1902. For many years he was president of the Manufacturing Chemists' Association, which included over 1,300 establishments, with a total capital of $150,000,000. He was very active in the preparations for the Centennial Exposition and was chairman of important committees. He was a member of the Political Reform Committee of One Hundred, of the Committee of Fifty, and a warm supporter of the Bullitt bill for a reformed municipal administration. In 1897, President McKinley appointed him diplomatic agent and consul-general of the United States at Cairo, Egypt. He is a member of the Loyal Legion, the Union League, and various clubs. HERZOG, George:

Decorative artist; born and educated in Munich, Bavaria. He opened a studio in Philadelphia in 1873, and has continued in that field ever since. His exhibits at the Centennial Exposition gained him two medals, one from the judges of group seven, and the other from group twenty-seven, which embodied plastic and graphic art. From that time on he rapidly advanced until he became one of the best known decorators in the United States, and won an international reputation. Some of his best work is found in the Supreme Court rooms, City Hall, and the Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, showing as it does his knowledge of historical and allegorical subjects and great skill in representation; the purely decorative features so harmonizing with the pictorial as to justify their being classed among the very finest examples of decorative art. Among the many private residences decorated by him are those of John H. Converse, Thomas Dolan, Charles J. Harrah, Edwin H. Fitler, P. A. B. Widener, William L. Elkins, and James Elverson. In all of his works he is most particular to have his motif in exact accord with the style and character of the building, as is exemplified in a remarkable degree in the now famous Egyptian and Corinthian Halls, Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, the finest structure of its kind in the world. Address: 3305 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

HUMES, William Potter:

Banker; born in Bellefonte, Pa., Sept. 21, 1844; son of the late Edward Crouch Humes, who at the time of his death, March 28, 1895 (in the 55th year of his age), was reputed to be the oldest bank president in the United States. Mr. Humes was educated at the Bellefonte Academy; afterward at the Pennsylvania State College, then known as the Farmers' High School (later as Agricultural College of Pennsylvania), from where he was called to his home during the early part of the Civil War, to assist his father in his varied business interests, taking an active part in the banking interests of his native place, in connection with the First National Bank, and the successful banking firm established previously by his father, of Humes, McAllister, Hale & Company, composed of Edward C. Humes, H. N. McAllister, a prominent lawyer; Judge James T.

Hale, also a leading lawyer, and member of Congress; and Andrew G. Curtin, the great war governor of Pennsylvania, and which was after a number of years merged into the former (First National Bank of Bellefonte), of which his father was also president until his death. In addition to his financial interests, Mr. Humes became more generally known to the public, as a candidate for position of United States commissioner of railroads, to succeed Gen. Wade Hampton of South Carolina. He was supported in his application by nearly all the Republican leaders, and officials of Pennsylvania, and also by a number of close personal friends of the President, of his own State of Ohio. However General Longstreet of Georgia, who was the strongest competitor of Mr. Humes, who became an active supporter of the Union at the close of the Civil War, and a friend of President McKinley, was finally appointed to the place. While he has given up very largely, active connection with the bank, on account of his father's estate, and outside business interests, requiring more of his attention, he still remains as a director of the bank, and with his sister, Miss Mira, and his father's estate, are its largest stockholders. His mother, who was Miss Lucy Alexander (previous to her marriage with Edward C. Humes), and who was a niece of the late Hon. William W. Potter (by his marriage), a member of Congress from Pennsylvania, and prominent lawyer at Bellefonte, died Feb. 19, 1886, and his brother, Hamilton (never married), died March 21, 1892. He was married, Dec. 27, 1877, by Rev. Wm. Laurie, to Miss Eliza Dobbins Harris, daughter of the late James D. and M. A. Harris, of Bellefonte, Pa., who died July 1, 1881; they had one daughter, Lucy Hamilton, who died Aug. 25, 1879. Mr. Humes is an elder of the Presbyterian Church of Bellefonte, with which his father and grandfather (Hamilton Humes) bore the same connection. Politically he is a Republican. He has also been for many years, an active member of the Union League of Philadelphia. Address: Bellefonte, Pa.

JOHNSON, George K.:

President of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company; born in Bucks County, Pa., Dec. 11, 1848, of Quaker parentage. He was educated in the Friends' Academy and at the Friends' Central School in Philadelphia, from which latter institution he was graduated in 1866. He began his business career as a clerk in a Philadelphia manufacturing house, and in 1880 started in business for himself as a member of the firm of Belknap, Johnson & Powell, manufacturers of umbrellas, which became the largest concern in that trade in the United States. Mr. Johnson became a member of the Board of Trustees of The Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, many years ago, was elected vice-president of the company in April, 1897, and continued in that office until the death of Mr. Harry F. West, when he succeeded him in the presidency of the company, in which office he continues. Mr. Johnson is a director of the Camden (N. J.) National Bank, and a trustee of many large estates. He is a member of the Union League Club of Philadelphia. Residence: Langhorne, Pa. Office address: Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, Philadelphia.

JOHNSON, Howard Cooper:

Lawyer; born in Camden, N. J., Jan. 18, 1876; son of George K. Johnson and Sallie K. (Cooper) Johnson. He was graduated from Swarthmore College, as B. L., in 1896, and University of Pennsylvania, as LL. B., in 1899. He married in Baltimore, Md., April 16, 1903, Edith Lamb, and they have one son: Robert E. L. Johnson, born in 1904. He studied law under Hon. J. Willis Martin, and was admitted to the bar June 16, 1899. Mr. Johnson is director and solicitor of I. H. Johnson, Jr., Company, Incorporated; junior counsel of Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company; director and solicitor of the First Mortgage Guarantee and Trust Company, solicitor of Swarthmore National Bank, director of Swarthmore Stock Association, Byberry Turnpike Company, and the Bustleton and Somerton Turnpike Company. He is an Independent Republican in politics, and a member of the Society of Friends. Mr. Johnson is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the Law Association of Philadelphia, Law Academy, trustee of Swarthmore College, manager of the Preston Retreat; trustee of Home for Destitute Colored Children, director of the Public Education Association of Philadelphia. He is a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, Book and Key, Swarthmore College Alumni Association, General Alumni Society of the University of Pennsylvania, Law Alumni Society of the University of Pennsylvania, Site and Relic Society of Germantown, Union League, University Club, Bucks County Country Club, and Swarthmore Club. Residence: 6702 Cresheim Road, Germantown. Business address: 606-607 Commonwealth Trust Building, Philadelphia.

JOHNSON, Isaac:

Jurist; born in Delaware County, Pa. He served through the Civil War, which he left with the rank of captain; made the law his profession, after serving for many years as prothonotary and clerk of the courts of Delaware County. Captain Johnson had the distinction of being the only man ever admitted to the county bar without a formal examination, Judge Clayton admitting him to practice on the motion of ex-Judge Broomall, who said that Mr. Johnson's qualifications for legal practice were too well known to render an examination necessary. He became very successful as a lawyer and highly popular as a public speaker, especially on patriotic themes, and on the death of Judge Clayton, in January, 1900, he was appointed by Governor Stone to succeed him as president judge. He was elected to this office in the November election for the ten years' term. Address: Media, Pa.

JOHNSON, John G.:

Lawyer; born in Philadelphia in 1840, and all his life a resident of that city. He received a common school education, graduating from the Central High School, and subsequently entering the office of William F. Judson, for the study of law. He married late in life, his wife being Mrs. Morrell, a daughter of John

Hare Powell, and long a leader of fashion in Philadelphia. He has no children, but his stepson, Mr. Edward de V. Morrell, has occupied a prominent position, having attained the position of brigadier-general in the National Guard of Pennsylvania, and represented Philadelphia in the Fifty-sixth, Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Congresses. He was admitted to the bar Feb. 7, 1863, and continued in association with Mr. Judson, making steady and rapid progress in his profession, and became the special counsel of various large corporations. He had the good fortune, on the death of Mr. Judson, to be chosen to succeed him as counsel for the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities, a corporation having business connections in every part of the United States. With this important financial company Mr. Johnson remains connected, and he has conducted its legal business in the greater number of the States, this fact aiding to spread his reputation widely and give him the standing, in the opinion of many, of being the most eminent lawyer in this country. Among the numerous great cases in which he has been prominently concerned is that of the Northern Securities Company, one of the great events in the recent legal history of the United States. He might have attained to the highest honors, such as that of attorney-general of the United States, or justice of the United States Supreme Court, tenders of both those high offices being made him, but he has steadily declined, and the only office he has held is the minor one of a commissioner of Fairmount Park. Mr. Johnson's one recreation is that of enjoyment of art and the study and purchase of noted pictures, of which he has gradually acquired a large and highly valuable collection, which fills his house till there is hardly a square inch of wall space not covered by some notable canvas, while valuable pictures stand about the floor, resting upon chairs and tables, behind sofas, etc. His fine taste and high judgment in this direction have become so widely known that his reputation as a judge in art is only second to that of his skill in law, and other collectors have eagerly availed themselves of his aid in adding gems to their galleries. This has been especially the case with the fine collection of P. A. B. Widener, which was chosen under his assistance and advice. The city of Philadelphia has availed itself of his judgment in the selection of pictures for the well-chosen Wiltach gallery in Memorial Hall, Fairmount

Park, and his own splendid collection will very probably be donated to that city for public display, whenever the proposed fireproof municipal art building is erected. Residence: 406 South Broad Street. Office address: Land Title Building, Philadelphia.

JOHNSON, William W.:

Merchant; born in West Middlesex, Pa., April 6, 1868; son of Jacob M. Johnson and Emma T. (Eakin) Johnson. He was graduated from Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., with the degree of A. B., in 1890, and A. M. in 1893. He married in Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 30, 1894, Margaret B. Byers. He has been engaged in mercantile business since 1890, and is vice-president of the First National Bank. He was elected member of the Legislature in November, 1904, and served in the sessions of 1905 and 1906; member of important committees. Mr. Johnson is a Republican in politics, and a Presbyterian in religious belief; member of the Kedron Lodge of Masons, Norman Chapter, and Rebecca Commandery of Knights Templar; also of the Commercial Club, and Eagles Club. Address: West Middlesex, Pa.

He is a Democrat in politics; served one term as county commissioner of Wayne County, Pa., in 1880, and in 1906 he was elected on the Democratic ticket as member of the Sixtieth Congress from the Fourteenth Pennsylvania District, composed of the counties of Bradford, Susquehanna, Wayne and Wyoming. Address: Towanda, Pa.

KIRK, David:

Oil operator; born in Scotland, Feb. 15, 1831, and educated in the schools of this country. He started, in 1862, one of the first large oil yards of Pittsburgh. To this he soon added a large refinery. This business was prosperous until the combination between the railroad and the allied Standard interests put a tribute upon it. Mr. Kirk was prominent in all the repeated efforts made by the independent oil men to secure relief from railroad discriminations in the early days, and his was one of the many Pittsburgh firms finally driven out of business by the inequality of freights. In 1877 Mr. Kirk organized the McCalmont Oil Company, a producing concern which has always been successful. In 1887 he became active in the Producers' Protective Association and later in the independent concerns which grew out of it. He was the first president of the Pure Oil Company. Mr. Kirk was one of the chief witnesses examined in 1888 by the House Committee on Manufactures in its investigation of trusts. Office address: Pittsburgh.

KNOX, Philander Chase:

United States senator; born in Brownsville, Pa. He was graduated from Mt. Union College, Ohio, in 1872; was admitted to the bar in 1875, and in 1876-1877 occupied his first and only public office until he became attorney-general of the United States. He was for that year assistant United States district attorney for the Western Division of Pennsylvania, resigning in 1877 to form with James H. Reed, the law firm of Knox & Reed, which came to represent the interests of many of the large industrial corporations of Pittsburgh, including the great Carnegie Steel Company. From 1877 to 1901 nearly a quarter of a century of ardent pursuit of an exacting profession brought Senator Knox to the top of the list of legal lights of the Allegheny Bar Association, among whose membership is included some of the strongest members of the legal fraternity in the United States. Upon the earnest solicitation of the President, and in view of the very great questions affecting the corporate interests which were impending, Mr. Knox left private life and accepted a position in President McKinley's Cabinet. During the succession of President Roosevelt, the question of the operations of the so-called trusts under the Federal statutes upon the subject became still more advanced, and it was Senator Knox's part as attorney-general to prepare the groundwork of the successive processes taken before the greatest judicial tribunal of the country, for the purpose of determining how far the great aggregations of capital referred to were within the law, and how far, if at all, encroachments had been made upon the common rights of the people. While in the midst of the successful prosecutions and inquiries and court proceedings involved, a senatorship from Pennsylvania became vacant by the death of Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, and the attorney-general of the United States was appointed by the governor of Pennsylvania to fill the vacancy, taking his seat in the senate at the beginning of the second session of the Fifty-eighth Congress and being elected to serve a full term by the Pennsylvania Legislature of 1905. In the Pennsylvania Republican Convention of 1907, Senator Knox was declared to be Pennsylvania's choice for the Republican nomination for President. One of the most conspicuous arguments on the subject of railroad rate regulation was made by Senator Knox, whose constitutional argument in the Spring of 1906 has taken its place among the notable exemplifications of the fundamental document of the United States Government. Senator Knox is a member of the Lawyers' and the Union League Clubs of New York, of the Duquesne and Americus Clubs of Pittsburgh, having been president of the Duquesne for three years, and is also a member of the Lawyers' Club of Philadelphia. Residence: Pittsburgh. Office address: 27 K Street, Washington, D. C.

KOOSER, Francis J.:

Jurist; born in Somerset, Pa., June 15, 1846. He was educated in the public schools, the Millersville State Normal School, and the Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg, and taught as principal of the Somerset schools and for several terms in the Normal School of Somerset County. After serving as clerk under his father, then county treasurer, he read law in the office of Hon. W. H. Koonitz and was admitted to the bar in 1867, being elected district attorney in the next year. In 1875 he was elected prothonotary and clerk of the court, the business panic of that period rendering his term of office a very busy one. As a lawyer he was very able and had to do with many important cases. On three occasions he received the Republican nomination for Congress, and in 1890 he was nominated for president judge of the Court of Common Pleas for the Sixteenth Judicial District. He was again nominated in 1901 and was this time elected for the term expiring in January, 1912. Somerset County had been just before made a separate judicial district. Address: Somerset, Pa.

McCASKEY, John Piersol:

Mayor of Lancaster; born near Gordonville, Lancaster County, Pa., Oct. 9, 1837; son of William and Margaret (Piersol) McCaskey. He was educated in Oak Hill Academy and the Lancaster High School, which he entered in 1850. He was a teacher in the same school from 1855 to 1857, and from 1858 to 1906, and its principal for over forty years. Since 1866 he has been connected with the Pennsylvania School Journal, of which he has long been general editor and publisher. In connection with this journal, which is the official organ of the State Department of Public Instruction and the most influential periodical of its class in Pennsylvania, he has rendered valuable service to the cause of education. He put the Spring and Fall observance of Arbor Day into Pennsylvania, with the aid of State Supt. E. E. Higbee, which has resulted in the planting of millions of trees, and his memorial work for the Men of Pennsylvania who introduced and organized the common school system, has been of great interest and value. He has also done valuable service in gathering and publishing Old Songs, of which he has published more than a dozen collections with an aggregate sale of perhaps a million copies. These include the Franklin Square Song Collection, eight numbers; Favorite Songs and Hymns; The Flag of the Free Collection, four numbers; Our Familiar Songs; and Christmas in Song and Story. He has published the Lincoln Literary Collection, with special reference to good memory work in schools, in which he is especially interested, having issued pamphlets urging this important matter upon the attention of schools and giving the large amount of this fine work in literature that has been done yearly in his own school. He has published the Lincoln Art Series, a choice list of portraits and suggestive pictures good to live with. He has been offered many desirable positions at good salaries, in the State Department of Public Instruction, as principal of Academy and State Normal School, as county superintendent and city superintendent, but has preferred to keep steadily to his broader line of work as teacher, editor and publisher. He has been present at every meeting of the Lancaster County Teachers' Institute since 1853, and was its treasurer for more than thirty years; has been secretary of the Pennsylvania Educational Association for more than forty years. He was for many years the secretary and a leading stockholder of the Lancaster Inquirer Printing Company and of the Lancaster Watch Company, now the widely known Hamilton Watch Company. His ancestors were among the early settlers of Pennsylvania, Douglas and Wilson of Scotland, Davis and Piersol of Wales, Edwards of England, and Eckert and Carpenter of the Palatinate. He is the oldest of seven children, one of whom, six years younger than himself, Major-General William S. McCaskey, has recently been retired on the age limit from the U. S. Army, after an active service of forty-six years. He married Aug. 8, 1860, Ellen Margaret Chase of Bath, N. Y., has had seven children, and says he is a millionaire in sons. He has always been a Republican in politics. After fifty years' service as teacher in the Lancaster Boys' High School, he was, in 1906, elected mayor of Lancaster, and in 1908, reelected for another term of two years. He belongs to St. James' Episcopal Church, and has been a member of its vestry for more than forty years. Address: Lancaster, Pa.

SWANK, James Moore:

General manager of the American Iron and Steel Association; born in Westmoreland County, Pa., July 12, 1832; son of George W. Swank and Nancy (Moore) Swank. On both the paternal and maternal sides his ancestors have been Pennsylvanians for four generations. He removed with his parents in 1838 to Johnstown, Pa., and there he received a careful common school and academic education. Washington and Jefferson College conferred upon him the degree of Ph. D. in 1900. In 1852 he was asked to take charge of the local Whig newspaper and in 1853 he founded the Johnstown Tribune and with brief intervals was its editor and publisher until 1870 when he became clerk of the Committee on Manufactures of the House of Representatives, and in 1871 and 1872 he filled the office of chief clerk of the Department of Agriculture. In December, 1872, he took charge of the work of the American Iron and Steel Association in Philadelphia as its secretary, and as secretary and general manager he has devoted thirty-five years to the service of the association, the success of which is in the largest measure due to his efforts; and he is still its general manager. In 1878 Mr. Swank published, in book form, an Introduction to a History of Iron Making and Coal Mining in Pennsylvania. He was selected by General Francis A. Walker to collect the statistics of iron and steel for the Tenth Census of the United States, in 1880, and in 1881 he accompanied his final report with a historical sketch of the manufacture of iron and steel in all countries, and particularly in the United States, giving special attention to the work of colonial and other pioneers in the manufacture of iron and steel. He afterwards enlarged the historical part of his report and published it in book form in 1884, under the title of: History of the Manufacture of Iron in All Ages, of which a second edition appeared in 1902. In December, 1897, he published for the members of the American Iron and Steel Association a souvenir volume of 228 pages under the title of: Notes and Comments on Industrial, Economic, Political, and Historical Subjects. While chief clerk of the Department of Agriculture he prepared a history of that department. He has now in preparation a work entitled: History of Western Pennsylvania, with Special Reference to Its Industrial Development. Mr. Swank is known throughout the country as one of the ablest advocates of the protective tariff. Address: 162 South Fourth Street, Philadelphia.

NOW READY

THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT

We have just published a work entitled "The American Government," edited by H. C. Gauss, Esq. Mr. Gauss is a trained journalist at present occupying the responsible position of Private Secretary to Attorney General Bonaparte.

This book not only gives a list of all offices of sufficient importance to be filled by Presidential appointment and subject to confirmation by the Senate, but a complete statement of the powers and duties pertaining to each office and the salary attached thereto. How many Americans are there who could tell precisely what the powers and responsibilities of the United States District Attorney or the Collector of the Port are, and the extent of power vested in the hands of Bank Examiners and the Comptroller of the Currency, and to what work of reference could they turn for full information upon these subjects?

This book contains information upon points of law, procedure and custom not known to many of even the best informed citizens. Not many know that the terms of the Postmaster General and the Comptroller of the Currency extend a month beyond the term of the President who appointed them, and that the Postmaster General, unlike other Cabinet officers, can be removed by the President only with the consent of the Senate. Few know that United States Senators and Representatives have a right to select, subject to the passing of examinations, cadets in the Naval Academy, but have no such right with reference to the Military Academy, for which their selections are merely advisory, the President having the sole power of appointment. These and many hundreds of other facts as little familiar are brought out in this useful volume.

What American traveling abroad or contemplating going abroad but would gladly know the duties and powers of the American Ambassador and Minister, the Consul General and the American Consul; what their duties are not only to the Government they represent, but to American citizens who visit the countries to which they are accredited as well. Not long since a famous New Yorker lost a suit in the United States Circuit Court, involving more than $100,000. He desired to appeal it to the Supreme Court of the United States, but was astounded at being told by his lawyers that they were not sure that he could appeal it, and to his astonishment the Supreme Court refused to hear the case. Now this book tells just what cases can be heard in United States Courts and the jurisdiction of each court; and also covers all points likely to come up about the Government and its officials in all their relations at home and abroad.

The book makes a volume of nine hundred pages, bound in half morocco, and the price is $5. It is a book of reference for American citizens and for foreigners who desire full and authentic information as to the organization of the United States Government.
